Rockville, Maryland – January 30, 2008 – Notable Solutions, Inc. (NSi), the leading developer of distributed content capture workflow solutions, today announced the selection of NewWave Technologies Inc., a Value Added Distributor of Document Imaging Technologies, for the distribution of NSI's AUTOSTORE family of products. The distribution partnership represents an important milestone in NSI's channel strategy into the Document Imaging Marketplace.

NSI's AUTOSTORE product suite provides paper and electronic distributed content capture solutions that can capture documents from any source including MFPs, scanners, fax servers or desktop applications, process them using advance technologies such as OCR, forms recognition and Intelligent Document Classification then securely save them into Enterprise Content Management systems, line of business applications and databases.

“NewWave's standing with document imaging value added resellers and document imaging scanner manufacturers such as Kodak and Fujitsu made their selection for our distribution partner a natural move. Their existing client base of Value Added Resellers and their VARs active engagement in distributed capture solutions represent the perfect profile of resellers to take full advantage of the AUTOSTORE family of products.” said Mehdi Tehranchi, CEO of NSI.

“NSI's AUTOSTORE offering is a home run for NewWave and our customers. AUTOSTORE brings a powerful distributed capture software solution to our existing base of Document Imaging Resellers, enabling them to leverage the capabilities of the new breed of network attached scanners, while at the same time positioning our VAR's to connect their customers existing installation base of multi-functional devices as an on ramp for content capture and content management solutions.” stated Lenny Martin, Managing Partner of NewWave.
